JUNE GRADUATES

A solemn certification in sonorous Latin, inscribed on lasting parchment, signed by responsible dignitaries of thickly-populated universities to the effect that certain young men and women have become educated must not be sneered at by extra-mural cynics. Whosoever brandishes a scroll is henceforth to be treated as a person of learning and judgment and valid opinions. As well doubt the worldliness and happiness of the June bride as the erudition and profundity of the June graduate.

Some of the folks who are discharged from the educational barracks effect the transition from the sheltered cloisters to the open trenches of life without any pain or feeling of dislocation. They rush into the melee without hesitation or reserve. Here is a new world for them with new laws and usages; a harsh world and primitive conditions. They snap into it with relish. They hastily thrust aside the burden of ideas and notions which the university had sought to accustom them to during their terms of attendance, and seek eagerly to fall in with the codes of the new scene. They are anxious to renounce all their academic influences and unquestioningly adopt the new standards—the standards of the world at war.

And there be others who emerge cautiously from the shaded retreats of the academic world and are aware that the change of settings will involve a severe shock to their systems. They had spent years in learning the thoughts of noble minds; accustoming their vision to the broad vistas of universal concerns; delving into the objective truths of the sciences; breathing the atmosphere of ideas and spiritual values. The life around them had impressed itself upon their sensitive natures; its standards had seeped into their beings and become the rule of their behaviour. And when they leave the university halls they are haunted by the ghosts which had stalked among them. They are trailed by the flavor of the spiritual distillations which they had been inhaling. There is a problem of readaptation before them. They will not betray the influences which they had revered. They must effect a harmony of the finer standards of culture with the harsher values of the cockpit into which they are stepping. They must attempt to live a new life as men of culture and refinement.

Very well. When we come to think of it we believe that it was not worth spending a paragraph on the situation of the latter class. That class simply does not exist! There may be an isolated individual here and there who goes through the disquieting experience which we have described upon his graduation. There are not enough to make up a class.

And the question now is: Who will organize an organization that will provide jobs for the graduates with incomes of, say, twenty-five dollars per week?

ZIONISTS RETURN TO THE ZIONIST INSTITUTE

For several months the "Shekinah" of Toronto Zionism was obliged to dwell in "galuth" (exile). The Zionist Institute had been damaged by fire, and all Zionist activities had to be transferred temporarily to the Talmud Torah. The new quarters were commodious and comfortable. The board and staff of the Talmud Torah were very hospitable to the homeless Zionists and did everything to make them forget their plight. And from all appearances the work of the Zionists did not suffer from the change of scenery.

There was however one detail which the kindly hosts of the Talmud Torah completely overlooked, and which the Zionist guests seemed too diffident to direct attention to: No nook or corner was provided for Mr. Schatz where he might sit in his spare moments and play his cheerful game of chess! No one familiar with the Zionist situation in Toronto could but feel the moment he stepped into the Talmud Torah that there was something lacking in the new place—Mr. Schatz's chess game. The tragedy of the Zionists' homelessness, though softened by the kindness of the Talmud Torah people, was dramatically projected in the spectacle of Mr. Schatz's homelessness.

Well, the Zionist Institute has been made habitable once again. And once again Mr. Schatz, blithesome spirit that he is, may be seen of an evening, sitting at his favorite table playing chess with all comers, accompanying his moves with snatches of liturgical warbling. Toronto Zionism has been restored to its home, and all is serene again. And if the temporary exiling of Toronto Zionism was to cast a slight shadow on the future, the mishap is symbolized in the few chess pieces of Mr. Schatz's that were damaged and charred by the fire.

FOR THE SAKE OF THE JEWISH IMMIGRANT?

A new angle on immigration is pointed out by Rabbi Jacob Katz of the Montefiore Synagogue in New York City. This week's issue of the "Nation" comments editorially on Rabbi Katz' sermon. The Rabbi preached against immigration—nothing new, perhaps—but "his reason was delightfully new," states this paper.

"Too many immigrants," he said, "are becoming American—that is to say, taking as models of American life those who figure in the higher circle of the government and figure high in graft . . . . Any one living midst the foreign element knows the connotation when the foreigner says 'This is America'; by that he implies 'Get all you can as long as you can get away with it.' . . . Sewers, oil reserves, street cleaning, census, Chicago; what a spectacle of American life!" It is to protect the European, then, that Rabbi Katz would keep him out; and incidentally it is to protect the United States that he would prevent it from becoming any more like itself than it is now. All of which is perhaps not altogether, or at all, a jest from the pulpit. Here is a preacher with the gift of irony.

A new angle, yet something to think about! Is the fact that the Jew may be absorbing some of the features of American life detrimental to his character and his Jewish heritage? Is he better off mentally, morally, socially, and financially in some European countries, let us say, where the standard is set by prejudices and criticism? Or, should the Jewish immigrant, who after all knows no better than to follow the procedures his adopted country teaches him, be more assertive and less imitative? Speculation and imagination abound, yet, they lead to no definite, conclusive answer.—Jewish Advocate, Boston, Mass.

WEDDINGS

Goldberg—Seiden

The marriage of Miss Regina Seiden, daughter of Mrs. J. Seiden, to Eric Goldberg, son of Mrs. Goldberg, of Berlin, Germany, took place Sunday, June 3, at the Windsor Hotel, Rev. Dr. H. Abramowitz officiating. The bride, who was given away by her brother, David Seiden, wore a gown of beige hand-embroidered crepe, with hat to match, and carried a bouquet of Ophelia roses. Mrs. J. Seiden, mother of the bride, wore a black satin beaded gown, with hat to match. Mrs. Benjamin Robinson, sister of the bride, wore a flowered chiffon dress, and a natural colour linen hat. All the corsages were of roses. Dinner was served. Mr. and Mrs. Eric Goldberg are spending their honeymoon in the Laurentians. They will sail later for France, Germany, and Palestine.

Strean—Blumer

The marriage of Hilda, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Blumer, of Westmount, to Dr. George J. Strean, son of Mr. and Mrs. Max Strean, Sherbrooke Street West, took place at the Shaar Hashomayin Synagogue at four o'clock Tuesday, June 5, Rev. Dr. H. Abramowitz officiating. White lilacs, pink roses and ferns were used as decorations in the synagogue, and baskets of ferns and roses were arranged on the altar. The guest pews were marked with bunches of lilacs and roses tied with white tulle. The bride, who was given away by her father, wore a gown of lace fashioned in straight lines with long tight sleeves, the skirt draped and caught in front with rhinestones and real ornaments, her tulle veil reaching to the hem of her train and held by a coronet of orange blossoms. She carried a bouquet of orchids and lilies-of-the-valley. The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Miriam Blumer, maid-of-honour, wearing a gown of gold-brocaded satin, trimmed with tints of orange chiffon, orange mohair hat tied with peacock blue velvet; carrying an arm bouquet of Ophelia roses. The bridesmaids were Misses Lily Blumer, sister of the bride, in a pink tulle dress trimmed with silver metallic cloth; Bessie Strean, sister of the groom, in pink beaded georgette trimmed with fringe, with hat and shoes to match; and Tessie Glickman, in a pink georgette sequins gown. They all wore mohair hats to match their gowns and carried Ophelia roses. Dr. Lyon P. Strean, brother of the groom, was best man. The ushers were Charles Blumer, Bernard Bloomfield, Dr. M. Raff, Dr. Wm. Pearson, of Albany, Dr. H. H. Pearson, Carl Goldenberg and Dr. M. Scherzer. Mrs. David Blumer, mother of the bride, wore a green georgette dress trimmed with fringe, with hat to match; Mrs. Max Strean, mother of the groom, beige georgette dress trimmed with sequins, with hat to match. Their corsages were of American Beauties. A reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, 640 Murray Avenue, for five hundred guests. The decorations were carried out with pink roses, white and mauve lilacs and pink smilax and ferns. For travelling the bride wore a fawn ensemble with hat to match. Dr. and Mrs. George Strean are spending their honeymoon in New York and Atlantic City. They will live in White Hall Apartments, Kensington Avenue and Sherbrooke Street. Out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. Pearson, Celia and Bill Pearson, of Albany; Mr. and Mrs. M. Gelber and son, Edward, of Toronto. Mrs. Lyon Bercovitch played the wedding march.

Albert—Vineberg

The marriage of Miss Evelyn Vineberg, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Vineberg, to Bernard Albert, son of Mrs. William Albert and the late Mr. Albert, was solemnized Wednesday, June 6, at 7 p.m., in the ballroom of the Ritz-Carlton Hotel, Rev. Dr. H. Abramowitz officiating. During the ceremony, Bram Rose played bridal music. The bride, who was given away by her father, wore a gown of white satin, embroidered with a sunburst of rhinestones, with a similar sunburst of rhinestones on the train. Her veil of white net was arranged with an ornament of rhinestones. She also wore a string of pearls, the gift of her aunt, Mrs. M. Keller, of Cleveland, Ohio, and carried a bouquet of oyster white and pale mauve orchids. Mrs. M. Keller, of Cleveland, the matron-of-honour, wore a pink chiffon gown, trimmed with rhinestones, and a large pink mohair hat, and carried pink and mauve sweet peas, tied with pink ribbon. The bridesmaids, Misses Bernadine Rosen, Beatrice Glickman, Pearl Freedman and Hattie Albert, wore apple green chiffon dresses, short in the front and long in the back, with large pale yellow mohair hats, trimmed with green velvet bands to match their dresses. They carried yellow roses, tied with green ribbons. Gifts to the bridesmaids were beaded evening bags. Dr. Arthur M. Vineberg was best man. The groomsmen were Dr. Norman Vineberg, Stanley Vineberg, Arthur Kellner and Dr. William Ein, of New York. J. Albert escorted Mrs. A. M. Vineberg, mother of the bride, who wore a gown of real rose point lace over pink chiffon with a beige mohair and lace hat to match. She carried pink roses tied with pink ribbon. Mrs. William Albert, who was escorted by A. M. Vineberg, wore a pale blue chiffon dress, with a pale blue hat to match and carried pink roses. Buddy to go after a friend to make a sale, and something entirely different to go after a sale to make a friend.

For friendship is intellectual rather than emotional. Friendship is based on reason.

Therefore, to transform you as a buyer into a friend we must give you reasons.

—reasons in the form of quality in the product, service in information as to when prices are lowest and increases are expected, promptness and carefulness in delivery of the product, and complete assistance in its proper and economical use as required.

Each sale must be—and is—SO HANDLED AS TO MAKE A FRIEND.

BNAI BRITH WORKS FOR BOYS' CAMPS

Support of summer camps for underprivileged boys and girls was urged Wednesday, May 30, by Maurice Bloch, minority leader in the New York State Legislature at Albany and president of District Grand Lodge No. 1 of the Order Bnai Brith, while addressing a Bnai Brith meeting in the Mount Royal Hotel. He commended the efforts of the local lodge in attempting to create a permanent summer camp for Jewish under-privileged boys and made a contribution to help carry on the work. The meeting was presided over by Lionel J. Coviensky, president of Bnai Brith. Lyon Cohen, Marcus M. Sperber, K.C., and Horace R. Cohen, Sam Rosenman, who came from New York with Mr. Bloch, and Rev. Dr. Herman Abramovitz were there. Horace R. Cohen, Edward Barkoff, Harry Bronfman, Joseph Cohen, K.C., M. and Henry Weinfield, K.C., spoke. The efforts of the camp executive in attempting to raise $10,000 in order to cover the cost of sending 650 boys to a summer camp, each for two weeks, were outlined. The cost per boy was stated to be $15. A total of 500 under-privileged boys were sent last year to summer camps in the Laurentians for two weeks. An effort is being made to increase the number this year.

THE PEOPLE'S JOURNAL

An English-Yiddish weekly known as "The People's Journal" has made its appearance in Montreal. We are glad for it, the more magazines in the interest of Jew and Judaism the better for the cause of Israel. The power of the press in disseminating knowledge is beyond the average human imagination. Especially are the Yiddish masses in need of a dignified informative journal. We trust the People's Journal will prove to be of such a nature.

"OUR ABE"

Among the Jewish honour students of McGill is found Abe Edel, who is best known to us as "Our Abe." We learned to admire Abe during the past year while associated with him in the educational work of Temple Emanu-El. We doubt whether the local university ever met with a finer intellect, and we rejoice that at the age of nineteen Abe finds himself possessed with the Master of Arts degree plus the Moyse travelling scholarship. Abe is another example of that ancient but ever new and true proverb, "there is no royal road to learning."

WE VISIT OTTAWA

Summoned by the Kiwanians to be their guest speaker we found ourself in Ottawa on Friday. We more than enjoyed our short stay in the Dominion's capital. It's a beautiful place the "Goyim" and "perhaps" the yidden liked our frank talk on, "the coming of a new humanity." We regret that so many of our fellow Kiwanians were disappointed because we were not bedecked with "beard and peoth." In fact one non-Jew had the courage to tell us that he thought that a Jewish rabbi must have a long beard and wear a skull-cap, etc. The goyim certainly have misconceptions about us. And while in Ottawa we looked up our friend and member of parliament—Heaps. He certainly guided us through the stately and most beautiful government buildings and even provided a treat—we attended a session of the House of Commons. We listened to "heaps" of arguments and concluded that "law making" is not an easy job.

DID WE DISTURB YOU?

We scribbled commentaries almost for an entire year. Now that summer summons us to wood and hill we may not be as regular in our contributions. Some perhaps will miss our frank utterances; others will be glad that we are on a vacation. For many "commentaries" has been a disturbing element—there is no doubt about it. Only yesterday a fine soul remarked that commentaries did not permit her to sleep mentally. Good! We are in the business of disturbing those who lull themselves to sleep by outworn creeds and ceremonialism. We are engaged in the same business as were the prophets of Israel—who certainly disturbed the Jewishly snug and self-satisfied. Read the first chapter of Isaiah and check up on us.

IN JUNE ISSUE OF "FORUM"

"Justice, Crime and Punishment," by Rabbi Moses M. Yoshor, of Brooklyn; "A Notable Contribution to Jewish Jurisprudence," by Dr. Moses Jung, of the Bnai Brith Hillel Foundation; "Rabban Johanan B. Zakkai's Conversations with Non-Jews," by Rev. I. Israelstam, of London, England, are among the articles in the June issue of The Jewish Forum, of New York City, appearing June 1. Among other contributors to this issue are: The Haham; Dr. Moses Gaster, of London; Prof. Selig Brodetsky, of the University of Leeds; Dr. Samuel Schulman, of Temple Emanu-El; Dr. Isaac Herzog, of Dublin, Ireland; Dr. Israel Shapiro, of the Library of Congress, and Dr. Isaac Husik, of Pennsylvania University. Editorials treat of the "Educators' Convention at Cincinnati," "The Twenty-fifth Convention of Orthodox Rabbis," and "Young Israel."

Prizes of $100, $50 and $25 will be awarded to the first, second and third best short stories or plays respectively appearing in The Jewish Forum in any of the twelve issues beginning with June, 1928. These prizes will be awarded in addition to payment for all stories or plays appearing in The Jewish Forum at the regular Jewish Forum rates, as printed in McCourtie's "Where and How to Sell Manuscripts," published by The Home Correspondence School, Springfield, Mass. The Jewish Forum will share equally with the author all rights in the stories or plays entered in the contest. The contest will be limited to such stories as portray the successful struggle with those conditions in this country that militate against traditionally Jewish religious life and aspirations. No story with an inter-marriage theme will be eligible for entry in this contest.

The stories and plays are preferably to be from 2,000 to 3,000 words in length.

Every story in the contest must bear the author's pen name.

Each manuscript submitted is to be accompanied by the name and address of the author in a sealed envelope (sealing wax) with the pen name chosen for the contest on the outside of the envelope. Postage must accompany all manuscripts returnable.

The judges of the contest are M. Blaine, dramatist, author and acting editor-in-chief of a leading metropolitan publishing house; Rabbi Abraham Burstein, author of "The Ghetto Messenger"; Dr. Albert J. Levine, and Isaac Rosengarten, ex-officio. Address all communications to Story Contest Editor, The Jewish Forum, 2000 Broadway, New York City.

CRANE VALVES

Crane porcelain enamel on iron sink C19320. Convenient and economical

The most used fixture of all is the sink

CITING statistics which show that running water in the home saves the lives of eight babies in every hundred, health authorities call good plumbing the most important of all health aids.

"If you cannot afford a complete plumbing system at once," they urge, "install one by units. The first unit should be a good kitchen sink. It is essential to proper food handling and saves a vast amount of labor."

Every home can afford Crane quality in such a fixture as the porcelain enamel on iron sink C19320. Made in eleven convenient sizes to assure one suited to any kitchen large or small, it is handsome, durable, and is offered at a very moderate price.

In the hundreds of fixture-styles and designs to be found in the Crane line, are innumerable others similarly attractive, within reach of small as well as more elaborate homes. Visit the Crane Exhibit Rooms and see the latest types of plumbing and heating materials. You will not be asked to buy, since Crane sells only through responsible plumbing contractors.

of Jamestown, N.Y. (formerly Miss Doris Rosenfeld, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Rosenfeld, Hamilton). Photo by Cunningham & Son.

Sunday, May 27, the wedding was solemnized at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. Herscovitz, 308 John Street North, of Doris, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Rosenfeld, and Philip Davis, son of Mr. and Mrs. S. Davis, of Jamestown, N.Y. Rev. J. Levinson and Rabbi J. Werner officiated. The bride wore a period gown of white taffeta with a tight bodice which had a V neckline and long tight sleeves coming to a point and trimmed with seed pearls. The skirt was of tiers of tulle with an uneven hemline. The veil was of white net, embroidered, and the headdress was of lace and seed pearls. Her bouquet was of Ophelia roses with lilies-of-the-valley and baby's breath. Miss Rae Rosenfeld, sister of the bride, was maid of honour and wore a gown of nile green taffeta with shoes to match and a headdress of tulle. She carried sweetheart roses. Miss Eleanor Herscovitz was train-bearer in a sleeveless dress of apricot silk crepe with frills of ribbon, and a band in her hair of the same shade. Herman Davis, brother of the groom, was best man. Mrs. J. Rosenfeld, mother of the bride, was gowned in a beige lace dress with corsage of American beauty roses. Mrs. S. Davis, mother of the groom, wore a black silk crepe dress and corsage of Premier roses with sweet peas. Among the out-of-town visitors were G. Terdiman, of Rumania; Mrs. Schiff, of Houston, Texas; Mrs. Goldstein, of Brooklyn, N.Y.; Mr. and Mrs. D. Burke and Jack Aaron, of Detroit; Dr. and Mrs. Harris, Miss Frances Munter and Miss Simon, of Buffalo; Mr. and Mrs. B. Davis, Mrs. Munter, M. and A. Heldeman and A. Fishler, all of Jamestown, N.Y.; Dave Greenberg, of Erie, Pa.; Mr. and Mrs. Kroach, Mrs. Reiter and L. Reiter, of Belleville. The couple left for New York, Philadelphia and Atlantic City. They will live in Jamestown, N.Y.

HAMILTON BOY DIES IN PALESTINE

Mr. and Mrs. Max Epstein, 47 Homewood Avenue, have learned of the sudden death in Haifa, Palestine, of their 13-year-old boy, Murray Arnold. A cable said that the boy was stricken with infantile paralysis and was ill but a few hours. One of three children, Murray was taken to Palestine last August to attend Dr. Biran's school for boys, a private institution. He had reached his 13th birthday May 18. Arrangements for interment have not been made, but it was intimated that burial would take place in Palestine.

The Unexpected Happened

By JOHANNA MAYER FRANKEL

It is strange how things do happen sometimes so unexpectedly and in the most unlikely places. For instance, there was the time we went to get our passports. But wait, for I mean to tell you the whole story. And it will be true—so true that we shall have to substitute fictitious names for the towns and persons involved.

It so happened that we were among those unfortunate ones detained in Germany at the outbreak of the war. At last it was all over; those gruesome days were a thing of the past—though never to be forgotten. The armistice was declared and we at once set to work, trying hard to get our passports, which would enable us to sail back to America. One can easily understand that things were still in a state of upheaval. Months passed without any success.

We were beginning to despair of ever getting back home, when a letter came from the Consul at G . . ., requesting us to appear on a certain Friday, at a very early hour in the morning.

Why just on a Friday? we wondered, for Friday was the only day in the week on which we never went away. The grandparents with whom the ruling powers had permitted us to live (we constantly thanked the Lord for that) insisted on having their family with them to help usher in the Sabbath. Travelling was no easy matter, especially along the Rhine, which was occupied by the French. This trip ahead of us would be most round-about and would take many hours.

So, armed with provisions to last us two days, the food supplied at hotels not being fit to eat, we set out on the Thursday preceding the day of our appointment. That would give us time to get back in the afternoon, Friday. We reached G . . . late that night. We were among the first to appear the next morning at the Consul's office, but once again our dearest hopes were dashed to pieces. Berlin would have to be communicated with, he said; perhaps even London. Then only would he be able to notify us as to results. Disappointed as never before, we left and hurried to the railway station. There luck was in our favour for we came just in time to catch the only train that would get us to the little town before night. The dense masses we encountered are indescribable and can only be understood by those who were similarly situated in Germany at the time. Hence we were not astonished to find that every compartment, both first and second class, was occupied.

We contented ourselves—as was the custom then—by sitting on our suitcases in the corridor that runs from one end of the car to the other. A lady in deepest mourning, surely not an unusual sight at the time, made herself comfortable on her luggage right beside us. At once we decided it was better for us to change our position, beside another coupe. We thought it would be to the lady's advantage as well as our own. Should anyone leave the compartment, both she and we would have a better chance to get seats. When we made the change hardly were we settled, but the strange lady came and sat down quite close to us again, remarking, "I hope you do not mind my sitting near you." Of course we made no objection, but at the same time we thought it rather a peculiar thing for her to do. Why single us out like this when by this time the car was rapidly filling up—and by her own countrymen?

Soon occasional remarks passed between us, as happens on continental trains. Gradually the long train got under way and before we were aware of it we had left the station far behind us. While conversing with us our friendly neighbour gave a sudden start and, pointing to the end of the car, said: "Why down there I see an old friend, a distant relative of mine. I haven't seen him all these years." Suddenly she up and struggled through that crowd of humanity, that by now filled the corridor from end to end.

After a while she managed to return, bringing with her a tall, pleasant-looking gentleman. The good-humoured throng, interested observers of this happy meeting, made room for the latest arrival's luggage. It was a joy to watch the animated faces of the two friends. But in our case I must admit it was mixed with a bit of envy. Here we'd been all those dreadful years in a foreign country, far from home, afraid to use our own language, never coming across old familiar friends. "It must be wonderful," I whispered to my companion, "to meet a dear old friend like that!" "What wouldn't I give," he murmured, "to come across someone from home after all these years!"

Wedged in so closely one couldn't help overhearing most of the conversation, we also gathered that they were Jewish, although they didn't have the Semitic type of features. They, in turn, gave detailed accounts of their experiences during the war—and they weren't all pleasant ones either. Many a sad tale crept into their conversation, and then ensued a long silence.

By and by the gentleman began again: "Do you remember when we met in New York just before the war, you over there to visit your relatives, I on a business trip?" I nudged my companion: "Imagine, they have even been to New York!" We began in low tones, recalling that night of nights, back in 1914, an April night it was, when we had sailed away from New York at midnight. Little did we dream as we waved to our friends below, that so many years would pass before we were to see each other again!

The lady had forgotten all about us, but suddenly she very tactfully included us in their conversation. Soon we were comparing notes of travel; you know how it is: How far we were going; where from, and so on. The friendly lady mentioned the name of the town where she lived.

My companion said: "I beg your pardon, but what did you say was the name of the town you live in?" She repeated it, adding that it was situated on such and such a river. "Oh," we said together, "we had a friend back home who married, left America, and went to live in that very city." Said she casually, "What was her name, may I ask?" "It's so many years ago—twenty odd, perhaps," one of us answered. "But I do remember," I went on, "that she had a sister and a brother; let's see what was his name?" "We ought to remember their name, we were such good friends," my companion remarked. "The brother was a jolly fellow," he continued; "now, I have it, his name began with an O." "So it did, for his name was Oscar B———," I said. With that the lady fell back against the wooden partition and seemed about to faint. But soon she rallied, looking at us both most intently. "That was my brother and I am the sister who came out here to live, and you—you are . . . !" mentioning our names. We sat there stunned! Slowly, ever so slowly we came to. Followed an hour of rapid questioning on both sides; the earlier reunion faded away in comparison to this newly-found old friendship. We had found that for which we had longed. Never shall we forget the reluctant farewells as we neared our destination. Even after the train had carried her away, we stood and marvelled at what had taken place. Truly she must have felt that some invisible bond was drawing her to us, when she followed us in the railway carriage!

Then, remembering that the dear old folks were waiting for us, we picked up our luggage and went down the cobbled street, reaching the old homestead just as grandmother was lighting the Sabbath candles.

"Sometimes when people censure me,
I tell them without rancour
That for what it cost me to be free
I might have had an anchor."

In consenting to give five millions of dollars for Jewish colonization in the Crimea and the Ukraine, Julius Rosenwald raises the ire of Zionists who cannot understand why a religious Jew would not rather give the money to the upbuilding of Palestine. The argument is brought up that with a turn of the wheel Soviet Russia may become something else and the Russian peasants will fall on the Jews as usual and nothing will be left of them or the great investments it takes to place these Jews on the land. But no one knows for sure any more than any one knows for sure what will happen to the Palestinian venture. Every Monday and Thursday it looks dim and bright by turns. Anyway, Rosenwald has given money to Palestine as he has given money to many causes in his capacity of one of the world's outstanding philanthropists. Perhaps he would give more if he felt the Zionist Organization of America to be anything better than a machine the parts of which know how to stick out their tongues at each other and make faces.

It may be that in giving such a stupendous sum to settling Jews on Russian soil, Rosenwald wants to help show the world that Jews are no "luftmenschen"; that they can and will be producers and not parasites. He believes, too, that people should be helped now, to-day, when they are in need and he gives his money away accordingly. He said as much in giving two millions of dollars additional to the Julius Rosenwald Fund which now exceeds twenty millions. This money is to be spent within the next twenty-five years. He said: "I realize that such a stipulation is contrary to current practice, but I believe the greatest good can come through the use of the entire sum by the present generation. Times are changing so rapidly that it is impossible for us to predict what the need of future generations is going to be."

This applies also to Rosenwald's gifts to indigent Jews in the Soviet Republics. There may be pogroms some day and the Jews may be wiped out and their farms may be destroyed or taken away and the land may be appropriated when it has been enriched by Jewish sweat and labour and all this and more may happen for one or many reasons. But to-day the Jews are tilling the soil and making homes in the Crimea and the Ukraine and it is a great testimonial to Rosenwald's heart and mind that he is giving them a vast sum with which their load may be lightened.

Lately in the City of Montreal when the twenty-sixth annual meeting of the Jewish Mission was held Canon Gower-Rees gave his hearers a picture of how humanity as a whole might be consolidated if only the Jews in all the various parts of the world would stand for the cause of Christ. He called upon the residents of Montreal to realize the importance of Jewish evangelization so that eventually the Jews there could become one of the strong links in the chain of Christianity stretching around the earth. Then came the report of the Rev. D. J. Newgewirtz, the superintendent, who told how the mission had been strengthened by the addition of a Hebrew-Christian worker, one Adolphe Lewis Secarz. But, he said, two more workers could be employed "if the funds would permit." The financial statement included this information: total receipts for the year, $8,029; expenses, $7,589. In the Benevolent Fund the receipts were $332 and the expenditures, $307. Judging from this the people of Montreal show a depressing indifference about consolidating humanity as a whole for the Christian cause. More money should be contributed so more "Hebrew-Christians" could be given good jobs. Mr. Newgewirtz has held his for twenty years now and, according to Bishop Farthing, "is reaping the results of his work."

Although it was announced cheerfully at the one-hundred-and-twentieth anniversary celebration of the Church Missions to the Jews in London, England, that Jews are one of the most susceptible groups to the conversion work of Christian missionaries, no figures were offered to back up the statement and the Bishop of Salisbury made an address which opens the claims of the Missions to suspicion.

Every movement whose job-holders live by the "successes" they can report always shows "growth" no matter if the check-up is made at election time or at the end of 120 years. From the frankness of Bishop Salisbury it may be deduced that he has no personal axe to grind that has anything to do with the pay-roll, but the secretary of the Missions, the Rev. C. H. Gill, was quite hopeful. Within the boundaries outlined by the old Christian hymn, "From Greenland's Icy Mountains to India's Coral Stra-ands," the secretary reported the Jews most receptive to the call to conversion. He quoted Dr John R. Mott, of New York, as saying "I can announce the Jewish as one of the most widely open doors" and he himself told of how Jews in Mogador, Tunisia, Algeria, Cairo, America, Jaffa, Warsaw, Hamburg, London were ready "to receive and even purchase Christian messages."

The celebration should have ended there for if these ceremonies serve any good purpose it is to make some fanatics feel that their place in heaven is being reserved for them. But the Bishop of Salisbury said that the church as a whole did not warm to this missionary work, that people had despaired about converting the Jews and had therefore neglected trying. What he called a shameful reason for the failure in converting the Jews was "a certain heritage of the old hatred." He warned his hearers that even where the feeling of the Christians did not take the form of actual hatred it did not show love and where there is no love there are no conversions.

The gist of the Bishop's address is a treat, something rare in its truth. Jews have been trying to tell the missionaries these same things for many, many years but the ears of the workers have been stopped either with gold (or bread and butter?) or fanaticism or both. A Jew will believe almost anything before he will believe that a Jewish conversion to Christianity is sincere, a matter of conviction. The smallest concern of the Jewish race is the "inroads" made by missionaries upon the Jewish numbers. But if the Christians are not going to be able to convert Jews until they love them, there won't be any conversions until the coming of the Messiah. And that's a long, long time.

SIR ALFRED M. MOND WILL NOT SEEK RE-ELECTION

Sir Alfred M. Mond, M.P., Carmarthen, has intimated he will not seek re-election, which confirms rumours that he is slated for the peerage in the birthday honours.

An altercation between Deputy Gruenbaum and Deputy Kirschbaum, of the Agudas Israel, occurred in the Polish Seim recently. Deputy Gruenbaum declared that the Jewish deputies elected on the Government ticket did not represent the Jewish people. Deputy Kirschbaum denied the allegation and said that he alone was entitled to speak for the greatest majority of the Jews, while Gruenbaum was only a political adventurer and represented nobody.

"Have you got the idea yet?"

There are laundries and laundries. But— This laundry of ours does not do anything but "family wash"—and that means more than appears on the surface. It means that, guided by the experience of laundry experts and costly laboratory research, this entire plant has been planned, built and equipped for the proper handling of "family wash" only. We are specialists doing one thing only and doing it so well that our plant is taxed to capacity, night and day. We offer the housewife five different services from which to choose, all priced so reasonably that home methods cannot possibly compete. Let us explain to you more fully over the phone.

ICE - the Silent Sentinel protecting food and health

WITH ice "on guard" in a good refrigerator, the busy housewife never worries about foods she has placed in its keeping. Every minute, day and night, it automatically safeguards their purity, freshness and flavor.

It keeps the air in the refrigerator in constant circulation.

Impurities and odors from the food are deposited on the ice cake and carried off in meltage through the outlet. The whole process is simple, safe, sure and sanitary.

Have a good refrigerator. Keep it well iced. Ice saves food, flavor and money.

WEDDINGS

Posen-Losev

Miss Florence Losev, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. Losev, was married Sunday last, at the home of her parents, to Harry Posen, son of Mr. and Mrs. S. Posen. Rabbis S. Sachs and W. Gringorten officiated. The wedding music was played by Miss Esther Posen. The bride was given away by her parents, and was attended by Miss Ethel Kramer, of Windsor; as maid-of-honour, and Ida Losev, sister of the bride, as flower girl. Max Posen, brother of the groom, was best man. The bride wore a period gown of white taffeta trimmed with pearls and rhinestones, and with a deep border of lace. Her veil in Juliet cap effect, was caught with orange blossoms and the long train was bordered with Chantilly lace. She carried Ophelia roses and lilies-of-the-valley. The maid-of-honour wore a maize taffeta period gown with deep rose point lace border and yoke trimmed with orchid flowers. Orchid satin slippers completed the costume and she carried orchids and sweet peas. Mrs. Losev, mother of the bride, wore a black crepe romaine costume and carried sunset roses and sweet peas. The bridegroom's mother, Mrs. Posen, was gowned in black satin and lace with corsage of roses and sweet peas. A reception was held. Later Mr. and Mrs. Posen left on a motor trip to the Southern States and will live in Toronto. The bride travelled in a navy tailored suit, blue hat and blue fox fur, a gift of the groom. Out-of-town guests included Mr. and Mrs. J. Lipovitch and Mrs. O. Astrein, of Detroit; Misses Ethel Kramer and Rose Cohene, of Windsor; Mr. and Mrs. J. Hurwitz, of Ford; Mr. and Mrs. J. Sweet, Miss Ethel Sweet, David Sweet, Hyman Sweet, Miss Sadie Vertlieb and Mr. Harry Silvert, of Hamilton.

BAR-MITZVAH

The bar-mitzvah of Harry Schlachter, son of Mr. and Mrs. M. Schlachter, Queen St. West, was held at Brunswick Ave. Talmud Torah June 1. The bar-mitzvah read the Maftir and gave a speech to the boys in the Synagogue, promising to be an honest and warm-hearted Jew. Harry thanked his parents and his teacher, A. Shubin. Over 170 boys gathered in the Synagogue. Each one received a blue and white bag of sweets. Mr. and Mrs. Schlachter donated fifty prayer books for the Talmud Torah Synagogue, and also donated money to the Old Folks' Home, Folks Farein and Orphanage. They gave a party, Saturday afternoon, June 2, in honour of their son's boy friends. The tables were decorated with blue ribbons and tulips in blue, hand-painted vases. Harry played the violin and the boys sang "Hatikvah."
